SOUTHERN IDAHO SHEEP. Not in Very Good Condition Owing to

Crowded kanges. State Sheep Inspector T. G. Lowe, of Franklin, Ida., who has been in atendance at the Woolgrowers' meeting, eturned to his home this evening, says the Boise Capital News, Speak-ing of the sheep interests of the state, he said that the ranges of southern Idaho are crowded with stock, and there are probably 300,000 more sheep being cared for in Idaho than ast winter. There are several rea-tone for this, one being that the leasing of the ranges in Wyoming to the eattlemen, has driven the sheep over nto this state. Another is that many Utah sheepmen, coming into Idaho under the quarantine regulation last oring, have kept their flocks here, for the year, instead of wintering them in Utah. Still another reason was the ack of transportation facilities, owing o strike in the car shops. Three undred cars of sheep were left in the state which should have gone out.

Ispector Lowe says the sheep are not in as good condition as last wing to the dry season in many places, ast winter's snowfall was light, and the grass on the mountains was short in consequence. Many of the treams in southeastern Idaho .. were

As to contagious diseases, however, the sheep have been remarkably clean. The federal government will report the nount of infected stock at one-tenth amount of infected stock at one-tenth of 1 per cent. This looks well when it is remembered that last year the proportion was 2 per cent. There has only been two cases where the federal officers interfered with interstate shipments.

AMERICA IN DANGER.

Yesterday an interesting discussion f the question, "Are American Institutions in Danger?" was held in Barratt hall, under the auspices of the senior students' society, the Rho Beta Pi, of the L. D. S. uniervsity. Two of the debaters were chosen from the married and two from the unmarried section of students.

Brigham Clegg, for the affirmative, led off with a humorous reference to the danger that menaced the future generations of our country by the large proportion of unmarried young men of whom his opponents were conspounds and warning examples. He argued ele-quently that we must be in danger when intemperance was unchecked, anarchy rampant, and European na-tions restive under the Monroe doctrine. He cited the fact that in these days the president of the United States cannot even go fishing unless attended by a large body guard.

Edward Day, for the negative, cited the growth and general diffusion of wealth in this country as a proof that justice rules, and that stability and permanence have marked the growth of this nation under the Constitution. The high character of the courts and judges and especially of the supreme court gave no evidence that any serious menace to free institutions is imminent. The anarchists are few in weak and unimportant. And if the founders of our government were in-spired to establish the Constitution of this country, the nation was to continue and there can be no real danger of its downfall.

Samuel H. Wells, for the affirmative, argued that it did not follow because the framers of the Constitution were inspired that their descendants would be led by the same inspiration. Immorality, political corruption, and centralization of power were named as the ele-ments that threaten the continued existence of this republic. The downfall of the ancient democracies under these sins was referred to and the corrup-tion of American public life was cited to prove that a similar condition exists in this country.

John U. Hicks for the negative, called attention to the fact that we are living under a democracy different from any that has ever existed. It is here alone that democratic institutions are given a real trial. The ancient democracies were oligarchies in which a few ruled vast numbers of slaves who had no political rights. Education among us is so general that its power will uphold our free institutions. Religious liberty is secured under our system, and as a nation we are growing petter. By what authority can you say that our government is not the best on the earth? All the corruption that has been referred to is but little when weighed against the better elements in our nation. we believe in the perpetuity of free in-stitutions, we must belive in the future of our country.

The judges, Prof. Hinckley and Instructor Evans and Funk, decided that the affirmative side had the best of the argument. A limited number of the Christmas "News" will be bound in magazine form and sold at 25 cents per copy. No charge for domestic postage. Foreign Favor the Proposition.

Judging from the sentiment expressed by a number of the east South Temple street residents before the council committee on streets last evening, it will be several years before that thoroughfare will be paved from State to Tenth East as proposed by the board of public works, and residents who petitioned for the improvement. About 50 residents were present and a number of them expressed themselves as unfavorable to the proposition, but when the chairman of the committee asked if per sons representing the other side of the question desired to be heard, not even murmur was audible. In all there was 8,057% feet of abutting property represented by those present who opposed the paving of the street. Charles Crane, who represented 5,393 feet, stated that the city was circady so deeply involved that it could not meet its obligations, and that the taxes were too high as they now stood He thought that the ordinance requiring a two-thirds protest to defeat a proposition of this nature is unjust and should be repealed. Representatives of the Auerbach estate, which owns property beyond the proposed district, also opposed the matter. After hearing such strong opposition from the taxpayers, the committee de-sided to postpone the matter indefinite-
